FINE ART AUCTION

Joyce Hornor

Joyce grew up in Fort Lauderdale, Florida and from an early age knew she loved the art world. Whether she was making craft projects or decorating cakes - she had a flair for design and detail. After moving to Gainesville, Ga. in the early 80's - she began taking classes to find what piqued her interest. Her original study was in watercolor but found it too unforgiving. She then went to oil classes in Atlanta with Chris DiDomezio and studied how the old masters painted in oil - she was hooked. She loves the effect of light on an object and found that still life was her choice of subjects. Whether it's a puppet, a vase or a bird's nest - she is inspired by the challenges of detail .

She is an active supporter of the arts and was a member of the Board of Trustees for the Quinlan Visual Arts Center. Her work is included in the Brenau University permanent art collection. Her work can be seen in The Gallery on the Square in Gainesville, GA.
