DONNA SEPULVEDA-SHELTON

Donna Sepulveda-Shelton became an artist at a young age. She was quickly enamored by photography and enjoyed controlling how an object is perceived by exploring it from multiple perspectives.

Donna has been recognized in the art community including becoming a finalist in photographers forum, a finalist in Carolina's Got Art, and had her artwork displayed in various exhibitions throughout Georgia and North Carolina. She received her MFA degree at Western Carolina University, where she also began her teaching career. At the University, she taught two-dimensional design, graphic design, and film and digital photography. Currently, she is pursuing a PhD degree in Higher Education Administration and teaches Art Appreciation at Lanier Technical College.
